Personal Projects
Learning and practicing with many Front-end projects
Working on my own projects with learned Front-end skills
Although I don't have much experience in the front-end developer field, my passion for it has inspired me to learn and develop my skills. I understand that I need to learn more to meet the job requirements, and I will do my best to contribute to my company by applying the latest knowledge and skills to its projects. I am always willing to learn from my colleagues and will be an active and hardworking member of the team. I believe that with effort and dedication, I will become a professional front-end developer and make significant contributions to the company.
